

What is the Cloud?

Cloud computing, also known as Cloud storage or the Cloud, refers to storing and accessing computer resources (such as files or software) via an Internet network, rather than from a specific device. You can use a computer program without actually having to install software on your computer, and can share files back and forth between multiple computers or devices without having to worry about thumb drives, CDs or email attachments. When you update a file on one computer and store it to the Cloud, an updated version will be available on every computer you use.

Getting Help with Technology at the University of Hartford

Faculty Center for Learning Development (FCLD)

FCLD provides consulting and instructional support to faculty and staff who are using technology in teaching and learning. The FCLD Faculty Lab in Mortensen 203a is available for faculty support and use and is equipped with instructional technology- related equipment including: PCs, Macs, scanners, and projectors as well as support staff. Faculty and Staff needing support with Blackboard or other instructional technologies, should contact FCLD.
